Following several recent new hires and promotions, L&L Holding Company has added Alex O'Connor as an associate with the acquisitions department in New York City.

Reporting to Yong Cho, senior managing director of acquisitions at L&L, O'Connor will focus on the valuation, strategy and execution of new investments for the NYC-based commercial real estate owner and developer, with a focus on acquisition underwriting and due diligence, financial modeling and deal structuring.

O'Connor most recently served as an associate at AR Global, where he handled acquisitions, dispositions and strategic initiatives across the firm's $4 billion mixed-use portfolio. Before that he was with CBRE, where he gained experience working alongside 'Queen of the Skyscrapers' Darcy Stacom and William Shanahan, after beginning his career as an acquisitions analyst at United Equity Investments.

"We are pleased to welcome Alex at a time when we are exploring a number of potential investment and development opportunities," said David Levinson, chairman and CEO of L&L Holding Company. "It will be particularly valuable to have Alex on board as we expand our team and continue our pursuit of the next great New York City office development and mixed-use projects."

A member of the Urban Land Institute (ULI) and NYPEN, O'Connor received two bachelor's degrees in finance and real estate from Florida State University.
